Disarmament adjourned on 28 June and will resume its meetings on 29 July.

(c) During the course of discussions, India introduced proposals designed to make the CTBT an integral part of a step by step process of global nuclear disarmament, leading to the complete elimination of all nuclear weapons within a time bound framework. These proposals were appreciated in particular by non-aligned members of the Conference on Disarmament.

(d) India has made it clear that as the draft CTBT text is not a measure towards universal nuclear disarmament and is not in India's national security interest, India cannot subscribe to it in its present form.

(c) The negotiations of the CTBT are yet to be concluded.
